

Life's Daily Struggles

I thought I could always count on My mom and dad, but life chose to take them.

*I thought I could count on
My family close to my heart,
But soon I learned that wasn't smart.*

*Then came to mind
The friends that I knew,
If you ever need me, you can count on me too.*

*Well, today is a struggle,
I feel alone in the task.
Who do I turn to? Who do I ask?*

*Then within my heart a soft voice did speak.
I'm here for your struggle,
I'm here when you're weak,
And I walk beside you when the valley is deep.*

*Take my hand as I guide you along,
Today I know you're not very strong,
I know in the valley you would have to ask,
Why I gave you this struggle and difficult task.*

*I want you on the mountain top not the valley below.
Some people want to hurt you,
So now you must go.
I will lead you from this valley,
the struggle
and task.
Tomorrow is the mountain top because you finally asked.*

*So if today is a struggle and a difficult task.
You can truly count on one person...
THAT'S GOD IF YOU ASK.*

Written by Pamela Lambert